In order to be approved as a Resource Family, or to reside or be regularly present in the home of a Resource Family, the law requires that you complete a criminal background check (Welfare and Institutions Code section 309, 361.4, and 16519.5). The approval agency will create a file concerning your criminal background check that will contain certain documents, including information that you provide. Personal information, including criminal history information, collected in the course of completing your background check will be included in a Written Report. The Written Report may be shared with any of the following: (1) An applicant or a Resource Family with whom you are associated; (2) a placement agency or juvenile court for the purpose of determining whether to place a child or nonminor dependent; (3) any approval agency to which the Resource Family's approval is subsequently transferred or by which the Resource Family is subsequently approved; (4) as otherwise required by law. You have the right to access certain records containing your personal information maintained by the approval agency (Civil Code section 1798 et seq.). Under the California Public Records Act, the approval agency may have to provide copies of some of the records in the file to members of the public who ask for them, including newspaper and television reporters.
